of the "Unknown Soldier" on Armistice Day

CHARLES AND ZITA. The ex-Emperor of Hungary and his wife snapped at Raab, Hungary, where the garrison, after declaring for the king, went over to the government, thus thwarting the futile ambition of a foolish man in his last melodramatic attempt to regain by storm a throne he did not deserve.

THE CYNOSURE OF ALL EYES IN THE YALE BOWL. Marshal Foch, of France, witnesses his first big football game, and as the youngest honorary son of Yale sees the gridiron heroes of his new alma mater triumph over Princeton in the forty-fifth meeting of the Blue and the Tiger.

THE LATEST AQUATIC SPORT of the feminine swimmers of the Los Angeles Athletic Club is water push-ball. Six players to a side, and the team making the most goals in twenty minutes is declared winner. All that is needed is a swimming pool, an inflated ball three feet in diameter, a supply of one-piece suits and a dozen fair swimmers.

Right—LADY DIANA MANNERS. A new picture of the English titled movie queen, daughter of the Duke of Rutland and the wife of Alfred Duff Cooper. The famous beauty has posed for a "still" at the wheel of her roadster with a favorite Irish terrier. Note the Napoleonic hat and single orchid floral decoration.

MARSHAL FOCH AT YALE. Marshal Foch, of France, leaving Woolsey Hall after receiving from the fellows the honorary degree of Doctor of Laws—the same honor bestowed by Yale University 140 years ago upon Washington, Lafayette and Rochambeau. Said President Angell in his eulogy: "Eight thousand sons of Yale went forth to join the legions under your command, and many stayed to sleep eternally beneath the sacred soil of France. Their spirits here salute you."

Left—JOAN CLEMENT as "Persia," one of the pretty New York maids to take part in the first Victory Ball and pageant designed as a national tribute and source of income to disabled veterans of the World War, held at the Waldorf on the eve of Armistice Day. American Legion posts, society and the stage joined in making it a brilliant affair.

Left—A PRINCETON TOUCH-DOWN. Although defeated 13 to 7 last Saturday by a better Yale eleven, the Tiger put up a valiant game and in the second period launched a fine aerial attack that carried the ball fifty-seven yards down the field and across the goal line. Our picture shows Garrity, Nassau's powerful half-back, crashing through for a touchdown.

Right—PENN RALLIES TO THE DARTMOUTH. The Quaker's right halfback, Wittmer, is pictured being thrown by Neidinger, star tackle of the big Green team in last Saturday's 14 to 14 tie game at the Polo Grounds—a contest regarded by Penn followers as a moral victory, by the Hanoverians as a disappointment.
